Louise Campbell is a highly sought after speaker for educational conferences, Religious Education seminars, Indigenous gatherings. Stolen from her family in Bowraville, NSW, in the early 60's, Louise has a strong sense of what it means to be wrenched from family and culture. It is her faith that has provided a thread in her life. She has degrees in education, jurisprudence, and ATSI education, and is completing a Masters in Theology.

Grace Sharon studies theology at United Faculty of Theology and is a member of the UFT Indigenous Issues group. For the last 18 months she has been researching the issue of compensation for the members of the Stolen Generations from social, political and moral perspectives.
